driving frequency of the transducer. The goal of this work was to demonstrate the use of multi-frequency kinoforms in acoustics. Within optical holography, multi-frequency kinoforms are of interest for a variety of applications, particularly colour displays. This has led to a range of algorithms for their design.

The design of one such multi-frequency high resolution LPI radar, PANDORA, is covered. This work represents the first time that the topic of multi-frequency radars is discussed in such detail and it is based on research conducted by the author in The Netherlands.

frequencies is formed. This approach heavily restricts the design space and limits the frequency placement to only a single mode. A more flexible approach is to form a structure as set of infinite elements and, via an optimization routine, vary properties or dimensions of the elements to design the cantilever. Cai et al.

1.03:1 and frequency band from 5.111GHz to 5.631GHz band is 1.43:1 and 1.12:1 for frequency band 5.917GHz to 7.028GHz as shown in the Fig. 4. Fig.5 shows the simulated 3-D radiation pattern at three resonant frequencies. The gain of the antenna is always more than 5dBi across the three frequency bands as shown in the Fig.5.
