first false religion on earth, which was astrology, the worship of the stars. The tower of Babel was a ziggurat, or a great terraced tower of sun dried mud brick faced with kiln dried brick on which the priests of Babel plotted the stars and practiced their false religion. The structure probably had seven stories with a shrine or temple on top.

In The End of Religion, Cavey contends that the Jesus described in the Bible never intended to found a new religion; instead he hoped to break down the very idea of religion as a way to God. With a fresh perspective on biblical stories, Cavey paints a picture of the world God originally intended and still desires: a world without religion.

In The Meaning & End of Religion, Smith contends that religion is a peculiarly European concept of recent origin. Practitioners of any given faith don't come to regard what they do as 'religion' until they have sprouted that form of collective self-regard which causes them to have absorbed the perspective of the outsider.
