Gross domestic product (GDP) is a monetary measure of the market value of all the final goods and services produced in a period of time, often annually or quarterly. Nominal GDP estimates are commonly used to determine the economic performance of a whole country or region, and to make international comparisons.. GDP (nominal) per capita does not, however, reflect differences in the cost of ...

1. Introduction. Two essential elements of modern society, energy and water, are inextricably connected. The production of energy requires significant amount of water, and in turn, the extraction, treatment, distribution, and use of water along with waste water treatment consume a large amount of energy . For example, Water for Energy reported that in 2010 about 15% of the world's total ...
